

An Introduction to Astaro Security

Course Overview and Intended Audience

The Astaro Security one-day introduction course is for people who are intending to purchase or have recently purchased the Astaro security solution. It is intended for Astaro Security Linux (ASL) users and administrators who want to experience the overall capabilities of Astaro and the 'how to' effectively and timely configure a firewall. The training is less theoretical and will focus on more practical issues with configuring the Astaro solution to meet the participants' requirements.

The course will help participants achieve the following goals:

- Become familiar with the product capabilities, as well as how to access technical information and support from Network Secure and Astaro
- Understand the internal structures, functions, and configuration options
- Gain working knowledge of how to install and configure Astaro Security Linux
- Develop the practical knowledge needed for system management, maintenance, and monitoring

Previous Knowledge

A general understanding of networking concepts as well as a familiarity with the basics of IT security would be useful for this training.

Teaching Methods

- Workshop style with slide presentation and practical focus on test systems
- Adaptive adjustment of detail level, subject matter, and course tempo to meet the skill level of participants
- Participants will have the chance to complete practical set-up on either their own Astaro firewall or a training unit using their own laptops or the desktops provided.

Certification

Each Participant will receive:

- Course Materials
- ASL User's Guide (soft copy)
- ASL Product CD
- Certificate of Participation

Students can progress to intensive three-day hands on training session that prepares them for the formal ACE (Astaro Certified Engineer) examination. Please contact Network Secure for further information on this course at: info@netsecgroup.com
